

Advanced Diploma in OHS breaks new ground

A new training course that offers industry professionals the opportunity to extend their knowledge and formal qualifications in line with the latest in OHS theory and practice is now available from SAI Global.

The new, nationally recognised Advanced Diploma course is designed for optimum flexibility and is suitable for those currently employed in OHS related roles. The modular format enables greater flexibility in timeframes for completion.

Course content and structure is designed to meet the strong need within the industry for training and education that delivers a formal qualification alongside practical application skills, in areas such as systems implementation and lead auditing, as well as the more topical realm of advanced OHS risk management. This includes areas such as appropriate health surveillance and risk monitoring of employees, ergonomics and safety in design – content that sets the course apart from others.

A further benefit is the inclusion of workplace-based project work, where appropriate, providing both a strong practical dimension and a link to the actual workplace; adding immediate and measurable value to the organisation concerned.

In addition to nationally recognised qualifications, successful participants will also be issued with certificates of attainment against internationally recognised RABQSA competency units that enable them to apply to RABQSA International for certification as a provisional auditor if they so desire.

The three modules of the nationally available public course require a total of ten days of face-to-face learning plus assessments which include project work. The three modules are:

Module One — Implementing OHS Management Systems - 2 Days

Module Two — Lead Auditor OHS – 5 Days

Module Three – Advanced Risk Management – 3 Days

Modules can be taken in any order, over a selection of timeframes. Recognition of prior learning is also available.
